

Nature Self Portraits

Hallo!

Today we would like for you all to encourage your children to create their own self portraits using materials found in nature. Creating self portraits encourage artistic freedom while also giving children the time to study their facial characteristics and analyze how everything fits together. We hope you enjoy this project!